“Asymptomatic” and “presymptomatic” mean the absence of symptoms. You may feel fine, but your body is not. Because you feel fine, you are unlikely to change your daily behavior. If you have COVID-19 and are asymptomatic, you are likely passing it on to others.

Studies are finding that a significant number of COVID-19 transmission is done by asymptomatic or presymptomatic individuals.